By SPENCE HELD

The other day I turned on my radio and listened to a couple innings of a baseball game in New York between the Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics.

It was very exciting, judging from the roar of the crowd. The tremendous waves of sound beat against my eardrums like the surf at Sunset Cliffs on a stormy day. The roar rose and fell but never stopped entirely. It sounded like a Notre Dame-USC football game.

Nothing less than 60,000 wildly-excited people could have produced that sustained racket. Me, I'm the suspicious type, so next day I looked up the attendance figures.

Reduced to cold newspaper statistics, they added up to 5,805 hysterical fans rattling around in Yankee Stadium.

I don't remember what they were peddling on the program—supersonic razor blades or Bawshaw's Baseball Beer—but anyhow, I didn't rush out and buy any.

It looks to me like they ought to get a new recording for their background noises.

Yeah, and then there's professional wrestling. I thought it was safely dead—and along came TV and the women went for Gorgeous George. "Goodness gracious, Agnes, how that poor man suffered when the Mad Russian clamped an oar-lock on him!"

Once, at the San Diego Coliseum, a character named Chief Chewaki wrestled Gino Garibaldi. The district attorney, a fan, ~~Chewaki~~ Chewaki in the can after a riot that followed the Indian's apparent attempt to strangle his opponent with a wire coat hanger.

The D. A. (not Don Keller) ordered Chewaki booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Wow!

Next morning a posse of reporters confronted the D.A. in his office. He was thumbing through a stack of lawbooks and seemed determined to prosecute the villain.

***

The serious look left his face, however, after a private conference with Chief Chewaki and the Coliseum ringmaster. The reporters finally were called in and Chewaki made a speech.

"I wanted to get back at the Whites," he said. "They stole our land!"

Chewaki, a 240-pound specimen with a bashed-in nose and a cauliflower ear, said he had once been a fighter. The name: Gypsy Daniels.

In a wrestling match at Memphis, said the Chief, "I chloroformed Whitey Hewitt. I had a head scissors on him, and pulled a rubber bottle full of chloroform out of my trunks. When I opened the bottle, Whitey just kicked a little and then went to sleep."

The Chief's bag of tricks also included hypodermic needles, pepper, thumb tacks, sandpaper and whatnot. He liked his work and the fans went for him.

***

I noted with a pang the death of Frank Goodman, for many years editor of the Tribune. Frank was a kindly, understanding boss who didn't bother his reporters if they were competent to cover a beat or an assignment.

Frank knew everybody in town, almost, from 1902 to 1940, when the sudden influx of population ended a leisurely way of life here.

"He's a friend of Frank's," was a stock phrase around the office to describe anybody from oddball to dignitary who wandered into the newsroom.

I've been told that the 1915-16 Exposition—which put San Diego on the map—was Frank's idea.

***

Once he told me about the time he got out the first extra ever seen in San Diego. It was in 1905, when the gunboat Bennington blew up in the harbor. He promptly dispatched a reporter on a bicycle to the waterfront; the reporter gathered what few facts were immediately available, and Frank went out on a limb with a quick estimate of 60 dead.

That was about it. The Bennington Monument on Point Loma commemorates the tragedy.

I could produce a fancy phrase here and say that Frank Goodman's monument is the City of San Diego. But I won't—it wouldn't be true and he wouldn't like it. Let's leave it this way: He had a lot of friends.

Woman Killed By Car On Rosecrans Street

A woman pedestrian was killed and a 7-year-old girl on a bicycle was slightly injured in traffic accidents in the Peninsula area recently, police reported.

Mrs. Mary Rodriguez, 52, visiting here from northern California, met almost instant death May 5 at 11:20 p.m. when she was struck by a car at Rosecrans and Lawrence Sts. She was dragged a considerable distance.

The car, going south on Rosecrans at an estimated speed of 50-55 miles an hour, was driven by William A. Hay, 26, of the Marine Base. He apparently was passing another auto when the accident occurred.

Linda McGill, 7, of 331 San Elijo street, suffered abrasions on her elbow when her bicycle ran into the side of a truck at Kellogg and San Elijo last Thursday at 3:30 p.m.

Alexander McConnell, of 1430 Froude St., driving east on Bermuda Ave., at Sunset Cliffs Blvd., Saturday at 8:50 p.m., apparently swung too wide in making a turn and struck a parked car. Both machines were damaged.

A sneak thief took clothing from the car of William Stoffer, of 2210 Chatsworth Blvd., Sunday while it was parked at the foot of Safatoga Ave. Stoffer, on the beach, saw the thief, who outran pursuit.

Point Loma Boy Winner Of $2000 Amvets Award

A Point Loma High School senior, whose father was killed while serving in the Air Force during World War II, was named this week as one of the six national winners of the $2,000 Memorial Scholarships given by the Amvets National Service Foundation.

He is John D. Eberhardt, son of Mrs. Gertrude E. Eberhardt of 3744 Poe St., and the late Maj. Adolph T. Eberhardt. He topped other contestants in the five-state District VI for the area's four-year Memorial Scholarship, according to Wayne Davis, commander of Amvets Post 2 in San Diego.

Post 2 had sponsored Eberhardt in the Foundation's scholarship competition. A top student at Point Loma High, he is a writer on the school's newspaper and was a member of the photographic staff of its yearbook. He is ROTC Regimental Commander in San Diego. He hopes to enter Caltech next fall.

In announcing the award, Commander Davis said: "Post 2 is proud that the nominee has won a Memorial Scholarship. We are very happy that Amvets can be of assistance to this wonderful young man, whose family has already given so much for America."

FLUORIDATION APPROVED BY SURGEON-GEN.

The U. S. Government has given fluoridation its unqualified endorsement, Dr. William F. Sikes, Ocean Beach campaign manager for the Citizens' Committee for Children's Dental Health, announced this week.

The Citizens' Committee is campaigning against Proposition A on the June 8th ballot which would abolish fluoridation.

Dr. Sikes said the Citizens' Committee received a letter this week from the office of the Surgeon-General, U. S. Public Health Service, approving its safety and endorsing its effectiveness in reducing tooth decay by two thirds.

Dr. Sikes also pointed out that Congress gave careful study to fluoridation and then voted it in for Washington, D. C., where President Eisenhower now drinks fluoridated water every day.

"What happens to the President of the United States is a serious thing," Dr. Sikes said. "The fact that Congress approved fluoridation is a powerful testimony to its safety."

"What happens to our children is also important," Dr. Sikes added. "We know that fluoridation in time will reduce tooth decay among children by anywhere from 50 to 70 percent. We know it will give them a harder, more decay-resistant tooth enamel that they will take with them through their entire lives."

"Our choice on election day is clear. We can condemn our youngsters to dental decay by voting Yes on Proposition A to abolish fluoridation. Or we can protect our youngsters' teeth by voting No. No on 'A' means less decay."

LOCAL ANGLERS QUALIFY IN YELLOW DERBY

With the first qualifying period and the fishoff of the $25,000 San Diego Yellowtail Derby now history, deep sea anglers lost no time in burning their bridges behind them this week and were making the most of one of the season's heaviest runs of yellowtail at the Coronado Islands.

Qualifying for the second six-week derby period began last Sunday under highly favorable conditions, and many veteran fishermen expressed the belief that competition in the second round would be even hotter than in the first.

Ocean Beach-Point Loma area standard bearers in the first period final last Wednesday were: Wilson Edwards, 22 pounds, 12 ounces; Harry Kowase, 21-14, and R. H. Light, who qualified at the 11th hour with a 21-2.

The Islands yellows started popping in earnest last Saturday just in time to add a touch of real excitement to the first period windup.

In addition to heavy runs of yellows at the Islands, the old mossbacks at La Jolla gave anglers a thrill last weekend by cleaning reels of line about as fast as they were hooked. At the same time, the Point Loma kelp beds proved the hot spot for bass fishermen, and nearly all hands limited out.

Tom Drake Spearheads The New Organization

A Sewer Bond Research Committee, headed by Tom Drake as general chairman, went into action this week with headquarters at 2302 Sunset Cliffs Blvd., following an organization meeting Friday night in the Ocean Beach Community Center.

"Purpose of the committee," said Drake, "is to determine from the facts connected with the proposed 16-million-dollar sewer bond issue, whether proper consideration has been given to three factors. These are:

"1—The conservation of water.

"2—Disposal of the fertilizer that may come from the solids to help defray the cost of operation.

"3—Possible contamination of the beaches."

The Metropolitan San Diego Sewer Bond Committee is promoting passage of the bond issue at the June 8 election. The City plans to erect a sewage disposal plant on Point Loma, with an ocean outfall, if the bonds get the necessary two-thirds majority.

At the local meeting Friday, Drake was drafted as chairman of the Sewer Bond Research Committee although he did not seek the job. Ray Perine was elected treasurer; Miss Helen McNutt, secretary, and Charles Freeman, office manager. Mrs. Marjorie Edwards was named office secretary this week.

In a statement of policy, Drake pointed out that San Diego's No. 1 problem is the acquisition of enough water for its present and future growth. "It appears wasteful," he stated, "to dump into the bay approximately 40 million gallons of water daily at a consumer cost of about $16,000 when this could be reclaimed for industrial and agricultural use."

"There is also a strong possibility of contamination of bathing and fishing waters."

SEEKING ANSWERS

"To find the answers to these questions the facts heretofore brought out must be carefully studied. Also further studies must be made, possibly with the assistance of some nationally-known engineer with experience, not only in outfall, but in locating successful sewage plants inland."

"These facts must be presented to the public before June 8 so that no chance of a mistake in method or location may be made. Studies made so far indicate that the public could make a serious mistake in approving the bond issue without more complete information."

Drake said that speakers from the Research Committee may be obtained by calling headquarters, AC-2-7558.

The Community Open Forum has invited the committee to send a speaker to its meeting at Hillcrest Community House, 648 Robinson St., May 23 at 8 p.m., Drake reported. He said the Forum's secretary, Stanley Gue, had informed him the Metropolitan San Diego Sewer Bond Committee refused to participate in the program if the Research Committee took part.

"They said they wouldn't debate the question," said Drake, quoting Secretary Gue.

At the organization meeting in the Community Center here Friday, Drake was authorized to name a board of directors of the Sewer Bond Research Committee. Suggestions for members were made from the floor. The committee will include representatives from the entire city, selected on a geographical basis.

More than 60 persons attended, including representatives of various organizations in the Peninsula area. Those present included Frank Swan, former city councilman; Dan Smith, candidate for county tax collector, who volunteered for work; Harry H. Kerr, commander of Ocean Beach Post 433, American Legion; Dr. Paul Wedgewood, John J. Thomas, Roy Everist, Ed Bracklow, candidate for district attorney; Fran Box, Eddie Schoen, Sam Young and L. Van Stelle.

Van Stelle has donated the office at 2302 Sunset Cliffs Blvd. Drake told the meeting that the ocean current runs northward from the proposed sewage outfall site and into the beaches. "There is a grave possibility that Ocean Beach, Pacific Beach and Mission Beach will be polluted," he said.

Meanwhile, the Metropolitan San Diego Sewer Bond Committee declared that "epidemics of intestinal diseases from two different sources—overflowing sewer lines and a polluted San Diego Bay—threatened the entire San Diego area if the sewerage problem is not solved soon."

"Interceptor sewers at the present treatment plant have a capacity to handle sewage at the rate of 70,000,000 gallons a day," Chester L. Dorman, a co-chairman of the committee, pointed out, "and when peak loads exceed that rate, sewage would back up in the lines and overflow in the low-lying areas of the city."

"Morning hour peak loads recently have passed the 62,000,000 gallon a day rate for short periods, according to information the committee has received from the treatment plant operators."

METRO STATEMENT

At the present rate of the area's growth, Dorman said, peak loads will be greater than the interceptor line capacities within three years, after which the danger from supercharged sewer lines can be expected.

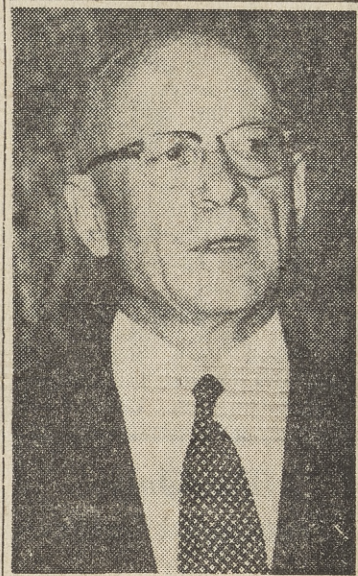

The new sewerage system to correct this condition, he said, will require about four years for completion after the bond issue is approved June 8.

"The health threat from sewage being dumped into San Diego Bay is very real at present and is going to become worse soon," Dorman said, to mention the other source of danger.

Untreated sewage being dumped into the bay is increasing at a faster rate than rate of population increase, it was explained, because the present treatment plant is at capacity and the excess has to be bypassed into the bay either untreated or partially treated.

"This growing health threat may have to be stopped by stopping new sewer connections so lines and treatment plant will not become further overloaded," Dorman said.

Clamping down on further development of San Diego would be an economic blow, but Dorman believed it would be preferable to risking epidemics of intestinal diseases throughout Southern California.

Boys' Soft Ball League Off To Good Start

Four softball teams are now playing in the league of the Ocean Beach Recreation Department Elementary boys' teams. They will continue playing until June 16th. One team is sponsored by Homer's Variety, another by Ocean Beach VFW. The latter organization has very generously ordered another set of jerseys and caps so that soon three of our teams will be in uniform.

Homers, captured by Sammy Sterns, is unbeaten in league play. They have several heavy hitters such as Robert Beneventi, Dennis Bentley, and Richard Maxey, plus two fine pitchers, Ronnie McLeod and Terry Love. Their closest rivals are the Yankees, whose captain is Frey Lay. He and his brother Dale, along with Richard Duncan, Robert McGee and Pete Theriault combine to make a strong team. Pete plays second base and has turned in several double plays already this year.

The Panthers are a bunch of scrappy kids captured by Ronnie Martin. They have a real good left handed pitcher in Ricardo Williams. They have been beaten several times, but in spite of all setbacks they never give up and deserve more credit than any of the other teams because of their fine spirit. Other players besides Boland, who is a fine leader, are Bob Wheatley, John Martin, Barry Miles, Dale Hillman, Thomas Benkenner, Danny Daffer, and Ken Brumley.

TOM SHERRARD SPEAKS TO BUSINESS GROUP

Tom Sherrard, Democrat Council endorsed Candidate for State Assembly (78th District) spoke before the South of Broadway Business Association at their last regular meeting.

Sherrard stated, "The latest reports from the department of employment indicate that there are over 13,000 persons unemployed in San Diego County. These people are drawing unemployment insurance benefits, and the value of their skills and abilities is being lost. Most of the unemployment are construction workers. At the same time, we need schools, highways, mental and penal institutional buildings. Also, we are long overdue on the Mission bay development project. Other State Legislature delegations are getting State appropriations for bay developments. As part of the San Diego delegation to Sacramento I would do all in my power to get the ball rolling in the areas stated. The revenue derived from worthy projects are assets to the state and the benefits secured more than pay for the development thereof."

Kennedy, son of Mrs. Madeline H. Jacobson, 15, Langford st., Gloucester, Mass., is stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., as an assistant gunner in the division's 123d Infantry Regiment. He entered the Army in March 1953 and completed basic training at Camp Roberts, Calif.

Earthworms, Hobby Of O. B. Resident

A hobby started in a very small way a year ago, is now developing into a business with Clyde O. Hall, 4575 Bermuda ave. It has long been known how beneficial to the soil are earthworms, and in conducting various types of experiments with the little underground bi-sexual form of animals, Mr. Hall is convinced this is so.

Mr. Hall's worms are not just the same as we know our ordinary gray, common earth worms that he tells us are migratory, and may be seen to be present by their little mounds of earth. These worms, used for organic help of the soil, are high-bred red worms. These worms are heavy breeders, laying yellowish-green eggs about one-half the size of a grain of rice, with incubation every twenty-one days.

Visual evidence of the remarkable work the little creatures do may be seen in the growth of carnations, orange trees, berries and flowers at the Hall home. There is as much difference in the soil as day and night where the worms have worked the ground and where none have been "planted". The hard, dry ground becomes rich, dark, loamy soil after the worms have turned the soil over and over instilling into it their castings.

Of course, they just can't miraculously aid the soil without some help from man. Mr. Hall has found that table scraps, grass clippings, decaying vegetables and fruit peels are necessary to give them something to work on.

One would be amazed to note, that as the soil is turned over exposing food given to the worms that smell is absent. They just "sort of homogenized" the soil, with even such a short time as two weeks showing a change for the better in vegetation. These worms and vegetation have been combined to turning of the soil and excretions are necessary, such as in compost piles. The worms do need watering about three times a week however.

Among many of Mr. Hall's hopes is that the worms may be a cureall for those pesky nematodes that attack the roots of vegetables and plants. Another experiment he plans soon is the feeding of help to his worms.

Much of his information has come from a book written by Dr. Oliver. He states that they are a cross between the manure and common worm. These worms, when grown to be of a large size, may be used as fish bait in fresh water.

Hall plans to get some worms planted in orchards in El Cajon and vicinity, as he has proven to his own satisfaction how they have benefited orange trees in his own yard. In January of this year he picked 80 oranges from a small satsuma tree, just a few years old that he has kept the worms working under for some time. Another orange tree, a Washington Navel, just two years old is another example of their aid.

Although he holds a full time job at Ryan on the second shift, he finds plenty of time each day to check up on how his organic workers are progressing, and at present he has saleable worms, and will continue to dispose of them. He has connections in Los Angeles and San Diego as well as sale to private parties.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall have been beach residents for sometime, having formerly resided on the corner of Ebers and Green st.—By Evelyn Macconnell.
